LEGAL NOTES.

In the Supreme Court of British Columbia.

Before

The Honourable the Chief Justice,
Mr. Justice Crease,
Mr. Justice McCreight,
As the Full Court in Appeal.

CREASE, J., delivered the Judgment of the Court.

C. HAYWARD, Appellant,

v.

THOS. HARRIS, Respondent.

This was an appeal from a judgment of the Chief Justice, acting as County Court Judge, for $53, recovered in the County Court, Victoria, from the appellant, by Sheriff Harris, the respondent; the action in the County Court being on a guarantee.

The facts of the case, so far as they are material, appear to be as follows:—

On the 5th October, 1880, Hayward recovered a judgment in the County Court, against Franklin, for $207.35, with immediate execution. The Sheriff levied accordingly on all Franklin's goods, the net proceeds being $98.25.

On the 8th October, the Moodyville Company obtained a judgment in the County Court against Franklin, for $500 and $17.25 costs. To this, on the 12th October, the Sheriff returned nulla bona, having already levied on everything seizable under the former judgment.

On the 16th October, the Sheriff paid into the County Court, to the credit of Hayward (which was the same as paying Hayward), in the action Hayward v. Franklin, $98.25 under Hayward's judgment, on having previously received from Hayward, on the same 16th October, the guarantee in question.

On the 4th November, the Moodyville Company notified Sheriff Harris to pay the creditors of Franklin rateably, under the "Creditors' Relief Act, 1880," and

On the 11th November, they took out a summons for the purpose, in the action Moodyville Company v. Franklin, before Mr. A. F. Pemberton, then County Court Judge.

On the 12th November, Mr. Pemberton, as County Court Judge, made an order accordingly for the Sheriff, as High Bailiff of the County Court, to pay the $98.25 rateably amongst the creditors.

Hayward had notice of this application, and by Counsel opposed it.

On the 16th November, Sheriff Harris paid out of his own pocket $53, the Moodyville Company's rateable share, to that Company.

On the 1st February, 1881, Harris sued Hayward on the guarantee, and recovered this $53 before the Chief Justice, acting as County Court Judge.

The present appeal to the Full Court is against this judgment.

The guarantee is in the words and figures following:

"Hayward v. Franklin.

"I, Charles Hayward, plaintiff in this action, hereby undertake, for myself, heirs, and assigns, that in consideration of Thomas Harris, High Bailiff to the County Court of Victoria, paying over, on account of my warrant of execution in the within named suit (Hayward v. Franklin), to the Registrar of the County Court the sum of $98.25, being the nett sum realized by the sale of the goods and effects sold on the 11th October instant, to hold him harmless from any suit or suits that may hereafter be entered for the repayment of the said sum to Court by any party or cause, and will repay the same back again to the Court Registrar, if so ordered."

The material question then is: What is the construction of this guarantee?

Does the word "ordered" mean—

- (a.) Ordered by the Supreme Court in its original jurisdiction, or
 - (b.) By the Supreme Court in its appellate jurisdiction, or
 - (c.) By a County Court Judge?
- One of the three it must be.

It cannot mean the Supreme Court in its original jurisdiction, because it has none; and the Execution "Creditors Relief Act, 1880," of B. C., gives it no direct jurisdiction. Nor, can it mean ordered by the Supreme Court in its appellate jurisdiction, for sec 21 of the "Creditors Relief Act, 1880," (assuming the order to have been a final one within that section) gives no appellate jurisdiction to the Supreme Court in this case; as here the sum ($98.25) is under the appeal limit, which is set by that section as "$100 and over."

The order, therefore, could only have applied to an order from a County Court Judge.

In construing the word "Judge" in the Execution "Creditors Relief Act, 1880," (assuming it to be constitutional and valid) section 2 clearly defines that the Judge who is to put the provisions of that Act into execution must be a Judge of the Supreme or County Court when acting in County Court.

With a view to this construction, viz., that there is no appeal against such an order as this, reference may be made to Musart Wirrell Highway Board (4 Q.B.D., 459), and Beswick v. Boffey (23 L. J. Exc., 89).

Now it is unnecessary to call attention to the well-known rule of law—that parties must be taken as having contracted with reference to the law of the land bearing on the subject in question.

That doctrine has been recently dilated on in Grouchy v. Wills (4 C. P. D., 365), where it is stated that "there is a legal presumption that the parties have in view the law of the country where the contract is executed, and intend to bind themselves accordingly."

We construe this guarantee, therefore, as if the words had been inserted "Ordered by a County Court Judge, or a Supreme Court Judge presiding in a County Court."

Again, if we are not to treat the "Creditors Relief Act," as constitutional and valid, by section 33 of the "County Court Act of 1846," the Bailiff is bound to obey the orders of the Judge of his Court.

But then it is contended that only a valid order from Mr. Pemberton was contemplated in the guarantee, and that Mr. Pemberton was wrong in giving effect to the "Creditors Relief Act, 1880."

Now, having regard to the circumstances that no appeal would lie from Mr. Pemberton's order, to the Supreme Court, it is obvious its validity could only be tested in a collateral proceeding,—e.g., by an action on the guarantee.

But if this was the understanding of the parties, the Sheriff must be supposed to have been satisfied with getting for his protection not an effectual security, at once absolutely available, but a law suit; and that suit depending on the constitutional question, for the sake of avoiding which the guarantee was given.

Indeed, according to the contention of the appellant, the guarantee was to be useless unless the Act was constitutional, and Mr. Pemberton's order in every respect in accordance with it; and both propositions could be satisfactorily maintained in an action on the guarantee. This is a conclusion to which we cannot arrive.

It is unnecessary to add that we express no opinion as to the constitutionality of the "Creditors Relief Act, 1880," or of the jurisdiction of Mr. Pemberton, and consequent validity of his order under that Act, neither of these points being necessary for our decision.

This, the fact, not the validity of the order, we are called on to determine.

We think the word "ordered" contemplated the County Court Judge's order, and that order should be treated as final for the purpose of enforcing the guarantee.

Judgment therefore for respondent, with the usual result.

Mr. Justice McCreight and the Chief Justice concurred.
